1. Join the 24-25 Senior English Google Classroom.

You can join with this code: 5srwh6f

This page is found in the Google Classroom with live links for support. The following assignment will be turned in through this Google Classroom. Do not be late with assignments. For each day you are late points will be deducted.

2. Resume: Due August 1 at midnight

Create a resume that showcases your education, abilities, leadership, skills, and talents. (These are not meant as categories on the resume!) It must be absolutely honest and present your best side. For the purpose of this assignment do not slant it toward a specific job or include an objective. Review the following websites for guidance, but you do not have to take every tip that is offered. Keep your resume to one page. Using a resume template (only one found on Google Docs) is permissible. If you want to insert a picture, be certain that the picture is business casual or business formal.

Use these articles and examples to inform your resume writing. I expect you to be familiar with them.

EXPECT A TEST ON THE FIRST DAY OVER ASSIGNMENTS #3 AND #4.

3. Read the short story “The Destructors” by Graham Green

<https://shortstoryproject.com/stories/the-destructors/>

Take personal notes on the major elements of the story: characters, plot, resolution, conflicts, and theme. Hill’s hints: Beware - these notes may be all you have to help you with a test!

4. Read the article on nihilism from the Internet Encyclopedia of Philosophy

<https://iep.utm.edu/nihilism/>

Take notes on what nihilism is, how it has manifested in literature, who the major philosophers were, what connection to see to our story, what the Christian response could be.

Hill’s hints: This isn’t the easiest reading, but it is collegiate reading. You will not be tested on details, but you should grasp the basics. Beware - your notes may be all you have to help you with a test!

5. You will need a laptop that you can bring to class daily. Do not think that there will always be a school Chromebook available. Your phone will not be enough. English 101/102 and AP Lit are considered college courses.
